NIGHT SCHOOL TO OPEN HERE OCT. 5

Courses of All Kinds Will Be Free to Everyone in City.

Night classes at the vocational school will begin on October 5, according to Mr. Dorrans, director. This year will be more extensive than the year that of last and it is expected that the enrollment will be much larger. Last year 209 attended. It will be held Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7:15 to 9:15 as formerly.

Classes in citizenship will be taught by Glen Gardner, a University of Wisconsin man, who is now employed in the personnel department of the Samson Tractor company.

Thomas Remal, also of the Samson company, and Harvey Coles, of the condition school, will instruct classes in auto mechanics and gas engine work.

Classes in Cooking. Miss Margaret Dunn, dietitian at Mercy hospital, a graduate of Stout institute, will have classes in cooking, menu making, and serving. All courses from the Mercy hospital have already enrolled in this course, which is open to anyone.

The teaching of commercial work, typewriting and shorthand, will be done by the Misses Lorline Betts and Amelia Rosenbaum, teachers of the high school. Costume designing and dressmaking will be taught by Miss Gertrude Buchholz and Miss Ida Lund. Miss Lund will also have afternoon classes every Wednesday from 3 to 5 o'clock.

Shop Work Courses. Another former University of Wisconsin student, Fred Wright, will hold classes in machine shop practice. John Arbutnot, instructor in physics and chemistry at the high school, will teach shop mathematics. J. M. Poon, experimental department of the Samson Tractor company, will teach shop drawing. There will also be classes in business arithmetic and correspondence.

If enough students register in electrical work an instructor for this branch will be secured, said Mr. Dorrans. It is the object of Mr. Dorrans to secure men who are successful.

PIGEONS TO CARRY LETTER FROM MAYOR WELSH TO ST. LOUIS

Two pigeons carrying a message from Mayor Thomas E. Welsh to the mayor of St. Louis will leave Smith's drug store promptly at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. They are racers in the Rexall derby.

Five thousand homing pigeons have been sent from St. Louis to their starting points for the biggest race of carrier pigeons that has ever been held in the United States. The pigeons were shipped in pairs by express from the Rexall pigeon loft to 2,500 cities and towns within a 500 mile radius of St. Louis.

Tomorrow morning the pigeons will be released for the flight, each carrying a message from the executive from the place from which they are starting to Governor Gardner, or the mayor of St. Louis.

The shipments have been timed so that each pair of feathered racers will arrive at the starting point 24 hours before the race. The pigeons will start from Janesville, which has been named as the starting point, and will fly the longer distance, from which a 48 to 50 mile speed is expected.

The race is a feature of the 17th annual convention of Rexall druggists which is being held in St. Louis.

TIRES USUALLY SOLD AT $21.95 and $24.50 will go at $12.50 and $15.50 Saturday, 100 in the lot. See them. T. N. L. TIRE CO., 56 S. River St.

GROCCERS DECLARE STORY ABOUT SUGAR ABSOLUTELY FALSE

Reports circulating around the city today that the Retail Merchants' association had informed its members not to sell sugar to members of the Stock county farm bureau who bought peaches from a shipment of four cars from Michigan to the bureau, were denied today by the bureau, as propounded. William Taylor, president of the Groccery-men's division of the Retail Merchants' association, when asked about the rumors stated:

"The reports are unfounded and entirely unsubstantiated. We further said that persons may have any amount of sugar from any of the groccers for canning."

It is believed that the stories originated from the fact that there are no jars available here for canning. There is a shortage of glass canning jars, it is stated, and it is impossible to get any. The groccers are said to have secured the market at Milwaukee and Chicago only to receive replies that there are no preserving jars to be had anywhere.

Alderman Horn and Badger were the first to bring the reports to official attention. Hearing them, they took the matter up with Mayor T. E. Welsh, who in turn made a personal visit to the Chamber of Commerce to investigate the matter. He was informed no such condition exists. Efforts are now being made to trace the origin of the stories.

IN THE FALL OF THE YEAR.
Spring inspires a deal of poetry of the light-some character. Most of the verse about autumn is sad and smelt of the lilacs of the valley and funeral candles. It took James Whitcomb Riley, with his ever cheerful viewpoint of life, to introduce a new note with "When the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder's in the shock." That is the spirit of autumn. It comes like the close of a day spent in good work. Nothing is so satisfactory. It is the payday of summer.
Autumn of 1920 is now one day old. It has come after a wonderful summer. Perhaps it has been a little too dry and corn and tobacco are not up to what they should have been, but while we constantly seek perfection we never really attain it. Somewhere Southern Wisconsin has been as nearly perfect, day after day, as one could wish. There have been no great devastating storms, no disastrous floods, no epidemics of disease—we have been able to travel, to work and to harvest in comfort. Fish have been no larger than usual in the streams, the snakes have performed no feats worthy of front page stories, and the usual phenomena of summer have been lacking. In fact it has been a most normal season.
Autumn enters with promised glory of color. Even at the death of summer she garbs herself as for a fête. There is a stimulating tang in the breath of the wind, a smell of harvest from the fields and orchards, her aerial smoke from woods and street tell of purification by fire—her music has not yet reached the minor chords of winter. There is a satisfaction about this season of the year that no other time can bring. It is well to enjoy it to the utmost.

OUR NEEDLESS STREET CARS.
Our Janesville street car system is such a pitiable thing that it seems almost like throwing a brick at a cripple to say anything about it. But patience of the public, long since a calloused and lifeless emotion, once in a while shows signs of being active in protest. If it were only the service rendered which is no service at all, that might be overlooked. But the car company constantly assumes an attitude opposed to helpful progress. When Alderman Helms suggested that the street car company tear up the pavement between its trucks and relay it as a measure of precaution against accident—the pavement in many places being positively dangerous and a menace to life—the mayor replied that he wished the alderman "good luck in making the street car company do it."
The apathy of the mayor in his reply is characteristic of the general attitude of the officials to the company. It does what it wishes or refuses to obey orders and that is all. If instead of being so charitable and permitting the company to put these things over on Janesville a few drastic measures were taken, it might aid in getting something done. The heads of the street car corporation living away from Janesville have a "Public-be-damned" policy that has grown with the passing years.
"Blime-by," said the tenderfoot in the O. Henry story, to the desperado who was bullying him, "you will go too far." So with the bully's own revolver the tenderfoot killed him.
As it is today the street car system is neither an accommodation nor an asset to the city. A system of motor bus lines would be much better and no tracks need to ruin pavements.

FRANCE SELLING OUR OWN SECOND HAND GOODS TO US.
When the armies of the United States left France there were some millions of dollars worth of equipment which were sold for a song to the French government. Automobiles, harness, trucks, millions of pairs of socks, underwear, canned goods, camp and mess equipment—everything that the money from a Liberty bond would buy here and send across, was purchased by the French at a bargain—in fact for a sum ridiculous in comparison with the original cost. Now the French have used all possible in their own armies and sold all the French people will take. A Paris dispatch says the French will ship the remaining lots here and sell them to the American people at low prices but at the same time at a profit to the French.
We gave the excuse for selling these goods to the French that we had neither the transportation facilities to bring them across, and if we did the result would be a loss in an effort to sell here. But it seems that the French government believes America is ready to buy from her. It does not require a very sharp mind or a clever one to figure out the low business capacity of the American war administration in this deal.

The Hon. Robert M. La Follette has come out with a bitter attack on Senator Lenroot. His daily paper in Madison has performed the rest of the act by showing that those who opposed Sen. Lenroot have no one for whom they may vote, except the socialist candidate. It requires no political prophet to see that in the next few days there will be an independent candidate in the field bearing the La Follette and Nonpartisan league brand.

Why object to the government paying expenses of the politicians who have jobs with the attorney general's office and who went to San Francisco to help nominate Mr. Palmer? Is not that a part of the program of theft? Also the attorney general was short of funds and the government has plenty.

Presidential Campaigns

BY FREDERICK J. HASKIN
IV. THE VAN BUREN-HARRISON RACE OF 1836.
Washington, D. C., Sept. 24.—Martin Van Buren was practically elected by Andrew Jackson to succeed him in the White House, but the appointment did not take effect until after it had been ratified by the people at an election which marked the close of one of the most bitterly contested campaigns of our history. The re-election of Jackson in 1832 upon the issue of his veto of the bill to recharter the Bank of the United States had practically decided the National Republican party. So in 1834 the elements of opposition to Jackson organized under the name of "Whigs," which, to some extent, had been the popular appellation of the National Republicans. Henry Clay was the heart and soul of the new party, but it could not unite even in opposition to Van Buren.

In all the northern states but Massachusetts the Whigs supported William Henry Harrison. In Massachusetts, Daniel Webster was the candidate. In the South, except South Carolina, Senator Hugh Lawson White of Tennessee was the anti-Jacksonian. But in South Carolina was looking out for itself, the legislature ready to instruct electors to vote for anybody to defeat Jackson's man, Van Buren. If the anti-Van Buren leaders had managed to get a majority of the electoral votes, they would have deserted their candidates to combine upon Clay or some other leader, but had a clear majority of both popular and electoral votes and Andrew Jackson's administration was once more endorsed.

The second Jackson administration had been even more stormy than the first. After Jackson was re-elected the attitude of the opposition was reflected by such names as the Boston Courier, which said: "Yet there is one comfort left. God has promised that the days of the wicked shall be short; the wicked is old and feeble and he may die before he can be inaugurated. It is the duty of every good Christian to pray to our Maker to have pity on us."

South Carolina found out for certain that Jackson was elected by the middle of November, 1832, and on November 23 the famous Ordinance of Nullification was passed. The tariff of Abolition was largely the work of Henry Clay and had not much support from Jackson. But Calhoun and the nullifiers, in fighting the tariff, declaring it unconstitutional and null and void, were in the same political bed with Clay so far as opposition to Jackson was concerned.

The burning words of Jackson's proclamation of December 10 was the first great and broad denial of the right of a state to oppose its single will against the power of the Federal government, and Jackson's stand on the question saved the Union. But the nullification question was one which affected only a small portion of the people. The bank question was a nation-wide issue.

The bill to recharter the bank had been vetoed during the campaign of 1832 and the voters had ratified the veto. The bank was then at a standstill, and it took Clay to get the bill passed. It did not take Jackson long to decide to use all his power to end the bank, without waiting for its charter to expire in 1836. His Secretary of the Treasury, William J. Duane, would not order the removal of the Government deposits in the bank which was located in Congress. He also refused to resign his position. Whereupon he was removed and his position given to Roger B. Taney of Maryland, who had been Attorney General. Taney removed the deposits and, in later years, was rewarded by appointment to be Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

Strictly speaking, the deposits were not removed from the bank. Incoming funds were deposited in certain state banks, and the balance in the United States Bank was gradually exhausted by drafts for current expenses. The selection of certain state banks as depositories gave rise to charges of favoritism and in the campaign of 1836 much was made of the "Bank of Peter," as such banks were known. But in spite of all these radical things and the entire destruction of the financial system upon which the country had been conducted, everybody prospered. The people were more prosperous than ever before, the Government was in better financial condition than at any time before or since in its history. By January, 1836, the national debt was all paid off and the country had to face the question of what to do with the surplus revenues.

JUST FOLKS

BY EDGAR A. GUEST.
THE FELLOWSHIP.
The earth is warmed by the kindly sun.
But lives are warmed by the deeds of men.
And their words of praise when our best
And their words of praise when our best
And the parting wish that we'll meet again.
The clouds may blanket the sky with gray
And the earth grow chill as the rain descends.
But he shall keep smiling along his way
Whose heart is warmed by the love of friends.

It's the glad "hello" and the handclasp true,
The smile of joy, the friendly eye,
That makes contentment for me and you
And makes of the earth a happy place.
Isn't the gold that we strive to earn
Nought the time we struggle to win,
For there are glories we'd quickly surrender
If never a kind heart took us in.

The poorest man on this earth is he
Who has bartered his friendships for selfish gain.
Who has sought advantage by trickery
And seeks for a fleeting smile in vain.
For the earth is warmed by the kindly sun,
But lives are warmed by a higher plan,
And he shall be glad when his work is done.

Who has kept the faith with his fellow man

The Tale of a Diamond.
Out of Davenport, Iowa, comes a piteous tale. A grocer and butcher, embodying in one person the business possibilities with million-dollar possibilities, is the hero. This man, in the characteristic of his trade, was wearing one of his many $800 diamond rings, the white and blue, when he attended to the needs of his flock of chickens. With such suchbaits, he knocked the diamond loose from its setting, and while he was probably speculating as to whether he should pick up such a trifle, one of the chickens swallowed it and disappeared among its fellows.

Then the butcher wanted his diamond, but couldn't find the particular fowl which had made away with it. There was nothing to do but slay the chickens until the right one was found. In the fifth chicken the diamond was located. The tale purports to be a true one, and the diamond was recovered from the fowl.

HEALTH TALKS.
STOMACH ACIDITY.
Here is a subject which brings a constant stream of inquiries, but on which it is impossible to offer definite advice because in most instances the "acidity" complained of is not actually gastric, but is due to indigestion. It is not demonstrated by chemical analysis of the gastric juice after a test meal, in discussing the subject here, therefore, I wish to add nothing to the information this article contains concerning stomach acidity.

(1) Prolonged anxiety, worry or so-called mental strain.
(2) Stomach ulcer or ulcer in the duodenum; chronic inflammation of the gall-sac (cholecystitis); gallstones; chronic appendicitis; hemorrhoids; constipation; indigestion; such constant pain that there is likely to be an excessive hydrochloric acid secretion.

(3) Various conditions of the body in which the normal efficiency or activity of the ductless glands is disturbed may give rise to a hypersecretion of the ductless gland hormones or extracts medicinally may increase or decrease the acid secretion in the stomach depending on the degree of the disturbance.

(4) Unsuitable food or beverage is the factor of hyperacidity in a great many cases. An excess of such foods as meat, cheese or nut may be responsible. Eating excessively hot food, or drinking much cold or iced beverages, especially extremely hot tea or coffee is a very common cause, and in the opinion of Dr. Mayo, this may also have a bearing on the question of stomach acidity. The habit of snoring once food with all sorts of irritating condiments, such as pepper, catsup, mustard, etc., is especially bad. The like is responsible for much stomach trouble; these drugs, however, are not to be feared. An excessive consumption of sugar is the cause of hyperacidity in many instances, especially when a person is taking a laxative or a cathartic, or is taking a large amount of food at mealtime or as a snack between meals.

(5) Partial obstruction of the alimentary canal at any point tends to cause hyperacid stomach—and this includes the various displacements called ptosis.

(6) Marked food stasis or stagnation—food residue retained too long in the alimentary canal—favors hyperacidity.

There you are, dyspeptics. Mutilate the liver, pick out your preferred cause or causes and prevent your case to your physician.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Young Smart Aleck.
My brother has been expelled from school for smoking. We feel terribly about it. Is there any way to cure him of the smoking habit without having to send him to a sanatorium? (M. M. A.)

ANSWER.—The principal or headmaster who expelled him is to be consulted. We need much more such schoolmasters. Too many young people at school—degenerate and mental degenerates—should be permitted to associate with normal boys and girls.

You will seek in vain for a secret treatment which will overcome tobacco, alcohol or drug habits. The only way to cure him of the habit is to have him be entirely conscious. If he is not hopelessly defective, I would suggest that he be sent to a sanatorium, where he will be kept in a room with a view of the sea, and the young man should be made to work and read for money. About that time he may be cured of his habit.

When he reaches such a frame of mind, if you wish, I will send him the necessary help by mail for breaking the habit.

CALIFORNIA SAFE FOR REPUBLICANS

Divided on League But Will Stick by Hiram Johnson.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1920, Associated Editors. The Jansville Daily Gazette.

Sacramento, Calif., Sept. 24.—Senator Hiram W. Johnson may be out stumping for the Harding-Coffey ticket but he has not forgotten what happened at the republican national convention in Chicago last June, and just as soon as this campaign is over the California senator means to lead the fight for a revision of the methods by which candidates for the presidency are chosen.

Hiram Johnson has the notion that the people ought to have something to do with the nomination for the presidency, and that the public should not be treated with a choice between inferior men. He thinks that the primary system is both logical and democratic. At the same time, he has no opinion about the persons nominated in the last conventions of the big political parties, he is inclined to the belief that the public would not be much worse off, and perhaps better off, if they tried the primary system instead of the convention method.

A Presidential Primary.

Senator Johnson's aim is to get a law passed by congress that will establish presidential preference primaries as something more substantial than the thing they are today. The spectacle of both parties nominating men who hardly figured in the primaries, while the expressed wishes of the people in several states were completely disregarded, will leave Johnson in the background for his appeal. And when he goes to Washington, Montana, and in the eastern states he will take the occasion to call by name some of the individuals who were elected in the primaries and failed to carry out the instructions at the republican national convention.

Wilson Failed.

Public men have tried before to bring about the choice of presidential candidates by direct vote of the people but failed. Woodrow Wilson gave his pledge to the masses to congress that he would try to secure the end of the convention system. Indeed it was his belief that the question of one or two terms was the best handled by the people in a presidential preference primary, rather than at national conventions. His suggestion that the conventions should meet merely to ratify the choice of the people in the primaries and to write the party platform. Nothing came of the plan, as the congressional committee before whom an attempt was made to frame legislation insisted that such a law should be amended to give the people the right to determine the methods by which their preferences shall be expressed.

Senator Johnson, however, will not let the academy objection of constitutional difficulties dissuade him. He has answered that a constitutional amendment is needed brings no relief, for it takes a generation to get a constitutional amendment adopted.

Hiram Thinks.

Mr. Johnson has sized up the California situation very accurately when he decides to tackle at once the question of choosing the presidential nominee. There is no reliance among the people in discussing Harding and Cox.

While the McAdoo democrats are waiting (both) and not for Cox and while the Johnson republicans are being urged by their leader to support the republican standard bearer because of his expressed opposition to the league of nations, fundamentally there is disappointment over the selections made at Chicago and San Francisco. No more opportunity time could have been chosen to make an issue against the convention system, and Hiram Johnson proposes to start right in when he gets back to Washington in December.

Northern California presents a perplexing situation politically—San Francisco stands out as a center of a normally a strong democratic center. The region in the vicinity of Sacramento shows more friendliness to Cox, and they talk of carrying California for Cox.

Wet Sacramento for Cox.

Indeed much more optimism about Cox's chances in California is to be found in Sacramento, where he made a splendid impression when he spoke, than anywhere else in the state.

Of course, Sacramento has wet inclinations, and many of its voters are planning to support Gov. Cox. The league of nations has been staunchly defended by the Sacramento Union and various other organs of the Sacramento Bee. So opinion may at least be divided on that question. The majority of the San Francisco papers, however, are decidedly in favor of California, but the southern end of the state is this time stronger for the league of nations than the north. So anything may happen in California in the next few weeks. Though if the election were held tomorrow the state would go for Harding.

(Tomorrow's dispatch will deal with the situation in Nevada.)

FEW OUT OF WORK IN BADGER CITIES

Wisconsin has no unemployment of any consequence, according to reports from 11 free employment offices.

This report is made in the face of claims of lay-offs in many industries. Frank J. Weber, business agent of the Milwaukee Federated Trades Council, claims 2,500 men have been laid off in Milwaukee.

For the entire month of August there was a slight decrease in the number of calls for men at the employment offices as compared with August, 1919. Applications for work were numbered nearly twice as many as a year ago. For women calls for help were greater than in 1919.

There is dullness in the leather working industries, and in some classes of machine shops and foundries. Paper mills are as active as ever, and due to the strike last spring there is marked activity in wood work and in the wood working industries generally. At the employment offices there is a keen demand for a common labor and wood labor, but a surplus to clerical and semi-skilled trades.

Alberta Has Extensive New Telephone Service

Edmonton, Alta. —A $4,000,000 program of telephone construction begun by the Alberta government last spring will be practically completed by the end of the year, according to Northern Alberta deputy minister of railways and telephones. The telephone system in Alberta is owned and operated by the government. The new construction comprises a number of trunk lines, a network of rural telephones and the erection of exchanges in smaller towns.

MILTON COLLEGE OPENS WITH 200 STUDENTS ENROLLED

Milton.—Milton college opened Thursday with a total registration of approximately 200 students. The enrollment this year is the largest in the history of the college and shows a considerable increase over that of last year.

One hundred nine men and women, representing 15 different states and three foreign countries, had registered in the department of liberal arts up to Thursday night, according to an announcement of Prof. Alfred E. Whitford, registrar of the college. No enrollment figures for the school of music have been announced, but nearly 50 students exclusive of those taking other work in the college had registered in the music department.

Two changes have been made in the faculty this year. Prof. Alexander Kenyon, who had been teaching at Rhode Island State college and Alfred University, has been appointed temporary head of the department of history. Prof. F. C. Hall is on leave of absence. The latter is to take a post-graduate course in history at the University of Wisconsin during last year at Milwaukee Normal school, succeeds Miss Anna H. Keaton, who had been teaching in the department of Goodrich hall, the woman's dormitory. Miss Post is leaving to continue her musical studies.

Two new students, Miss Mary E. Spoon and Miss Elizabeth B. Lane, are in the entering freshman class. Others from Jansville taking courses at Milton are Miss E. Kalkus, '22, and Miss Mabel Arbutnot, '22.

LIBERTY MOTOR, MADE IN FIVE DAYS AND NIGHTS. BIGGEST WAR VICTORY (A True Story of Science)

On May 29, 1917, two famous mechanical engineers, J. P. Vincent of Detroit and E. J. Hall of Berkeley, Calif., walked into room 302 of the New Willard Hotel in Washington, and looked the door. They had come at the request of the United States Government, for the purpose of designing a high-power airplane motor satisfactory to the American army abroad.

Mr. Vincent and Mr. Hall carried in with them drawings of all sorts of aviation motors in use at that time. They decided to combine the best features of these different motors and make a motor far better than any of them. For five days and nights they worked. At the end of that time they came out with complete drawings of a motor. So thorough was their work that the drawings which they provided were changed but little thereafter. Six weeks later, on July 4, the first of these motors was in an airplane and was actually flown.

On the day that the Armistice was signed, 15,151 12-cylinder Liberty Motors had been delivered. They had a total of 6,652,000 H. P.—six times the horse power of Niagara Falls.

Beyond question, this was America's biggest single war achievement, in the field of science and invention. Other great machines and other remarkable inventions have been made under the pressure of necessity, but never was necessity more truly or more quickly the "mother of invention" than in the creation of the Liberty Motor.

An airplane motor must be capable of running at a tremendous speed for long periods of time. At the same time it must have the greatest horse power with the least weight. Yet it must be "mother of invention" than in the creation of the Liberty Motor.

When the first 12-cylinder Liberty Motor passed a successful fifty-hour test, on Aug. 25, 1917, it delivered from 305 to 326 H. P. Later, the motor was "stepped up" to 440 H. P. Yet it weighed only 850 pounds on horse power to every two pounds of metal.

Remember that an engine of 50 H. P. is a giant among automobile motors. Compare this with 440 and you will see what a tremendously powerful creation the Liberty Motor is.

ALL FARMERS GIVEN EQUAL CHANCE AT HAY-GRAIN SHOW

Chicago.—In order to equalize the chances of small grain growers and makers of small grain products, the management of the show has been divided into six districts. Each district comprises the area in a certain latitude where climatic conditions are about the same. Entries in the show will be made according to these districts and the prize money allotted to them.

The Chicago Board of Trade is co-sponsoring the show by contributing $10,000 in cash prizes and a number of trophies. In addition to the regular exhibits or premiums there will be a large number of educational displays by agricultural colleges and experiment stations. Classes for small seed, such as clover, timothy, kaffir corn, sudan grass, etc., have been provided this year as an added feature.

Twenty-nine states and most of the provinces of Canada were represented in the show last year. It is held in conjunction with the international live stock exhibition.

NO-NONE SHOOTS ITUER THAN RICHARD L. BECK, BOY MARKSMAN OF OHIO

(True Story of a Real Boy)

Richard Lee Beck of Bridgeport, Ohio, the city once famous for having the saloon with the longest bar in the world, claims to be the international champion boy rifle shot. He bases his claim on the fact that last year he won the Junior National Rifle Shoot.

Richard started to shoot when he was only five years old. His father encouraged him and helped him. In the fall they would go hunting together, at other seasons they practiced shooting at targets.

Richard hopes to be grown up before another war comes along. He thinks he and Sergeant Alvin York will be in the same class.

SECOND LEAGUE OF BOWLERS IS NOW ORGANIZED

Final formation of the Industrial Bowling League, rolling under A. B. C. and Janesville Bowling association rules, took place at a meeting held at city hall Thursday night. Eight teams compose the membership with a proposed schedule of three rounds, starting on Friday night. The league has been selected for bowling nights. Season starts Oct. 1.

The eight teams that have entered the circuit are:

Parker P. Co.,
Daily Gazette,
Samson Co.,
Hanson Furniture,
Leath's Furnishing Co.,
Royals,
Harley-Davidson,
Wooler-Mills.

Officers of the league with captains of the teams will meet at Ross Printing shop Monday at 10 o'clock to draw the schedule and arrange for prizes.

Committees for this purpose were appointed as follows:

Schedule—Schneider, Dorn and Myers.
Prize—Stewart, Boyce and Myers.
Each team will put up a forfeit of $5. It is expected that a third league, to be called the Commercial league with eight teams.

Calls Reimbold's Letter a Joke

Editor Gazette:

Mr. Reimbold's letter which is published in your issue of the 15th inst. regarding recent disputed ball game between the Pirates and Samsons at Evansville is a joke. Samsons were absolutely in the right in every way and I admire George Reimbold's stand in this matter. I would suggest to Mr. Reimbold that he read the 1920 rules on baseball issued and approved by the national commission. He also calls attention to a recent game between the White Sox and the Yankees when Jackson caught Babe Ruth's high fly near the bleachers. He is wrong again there for even if Jackson had gone over the fence into the bleachers and caught the ball, Ruth would have been out for there were no ground rules covering this game. He is wrong again when he says an umpire cannot change his decision. I have seen the senior umpire, when two are umpiring, change a ruling made by the other ump and it stood—this in the National league and this in the Evansville game. A ground rule was made that a ball hit into the crowd was good for two bases and no more. The 1920 rules state that when such a ruling is made by the ump's and the managers of opposing teams, the batter is entitled to his two bases, whether it is a single, double, triple or homer, or whether the ball is caught or not, and if the ump temporarily forgot this ruling he certainly has a right to change his decision when it is called to his attention that he erred. It would be a mighty poor rule to have only disadvantages to the batter and not an equal number of advantages. Samson was entitled to a two-base swing and stay by your guns, Perring, we are with you heart and soul and the next time you play the Pirates we'll rock the wits' shoes and get on to Samson hook, line and sinker.

ALL ROADS LEAD TO JANSVILLE FOR ST. LOUIS CONTEST

All roads to baseball fans will lead Janesville way next Tuesday. The St. Louis Nationals will be the attraction in a game with the Samson Tractors at the fair grounds at 2:30. Tickets for the contest are going fast, predicting a huge crowd. It is the first time that a full major league team will be seen on a Janesville field. While other big league combinations have been in the city, they have not represented a complete unit. While the shops of the Samson Tractor Co., will close at noon and take a holiday to attend the contest, the streets of town find it impossible to close.

No Elimination Trials In Choosing Racing Planes

Paris, Sept. 24.—No elimination trials of American entries for the forthcoming James Gordon Bennett International Aviation cup race will be held, the special committee of the Aero club of America decided today. The three machines to fly the Stars and Stripes will be selected by the committee on the field Monday. The committee's decision will be final. The French elimination trials will be held tomorrow.

Ladysmith—Three hundred farmers enrolled in the Bank Holiday $1,000,000 fund clearing contest cleared and broke on the average of three acres on each farm, according to figures compiled on work done up to Sept. 1. The contest was to clear six thousand acres or three acres on each farm in rustic county.

CRUTCHER MAY HURL FOR CASE

Dick Crutcher, former McCoy-Nolan pitcher of Milwaukee, and one of the Boston Nationals will probably do the hurling for the Case threshers when they take to the fair grounds diamond here tomorrow against the Samson Tractors. Crutcher has not the Samsonies on the local lot before to his gloom. The question is will he come back and turn the trick. With the chances that Bill Lathrop will twist for the Samsons, he appears to be out of luck. Case comes here with a good record that gives promise of a couple of fast games. Whether a tractor or a thresher has more power is to be seen.

SEPTEMBER.
Now comes the time
To pull up the summer's slack again
Loading is a crime,
And the easy hours pass.
For there's something in the air
Says the leaves will soon be bare;
Steel-blue September's back again,
The gateway of the Fall!

Free of summer's load
The waving pine-tops beckon you
The wild, open road
And the windy woodlands call,
Now the autumn colors shine
And the morning tastes like wine
Go out lest Nature reckon you
Unworthy of the Fall!

Crisp on the breeze
Comes the cleanly wood-smoke,
speaking you
The gifts of the trees
Once stalwart, proud and tall,
And the bracing, racing days
Blue-draped in magic haze
Are hazy and seeking you.
Go out and meet the Fall!

That word picture the reporters drew of the submarine disaster, the other day was a wonderful piece of work, says ex-Sgt. SOL, but it wouldn't look so very good on a recruiting poster.

WHAT'S THE USE?
Since I learned in business college
That the basis of all knowledge is a ready and mistake-proof Memory.

I put forth my best endeavor
To acquire one, really clever,
That would make for what is called Efficiency.

When I had found employment
I looked forward with enjoyment
To exhibiting my prowess,
Speed and grace.

But my reception was perplexing.
Since I found that card-indexing
Made the memory process wholly
Out of place.

As a typist I was rated
At plus, and he it stated
That my scorn of typing errors was Emphatic.

But what's the use? Efficiency is of no earthly use to me
Since they're making even typing
Automatic.

Vital Issues Will Be Discussed at American Legion Convention

Headquarters of the convention committee in Cleveland and, left to right, Robert H. Tyndall, national treasurer; Russell G. Greyston, director of organization; and Francis O'Hiler, national commander.

Cleveland, O.—The bonus and relief for disabled veterans and the legion's policy in political affairs will be among the vital matters to be discussed by the American Legion at its annual national convention here Sept. 27-29.

Another issue will be the legion stand on labor matters, many delegations having served advance notice they will demand that legion members be prohibited from participating in labor disputes and strikes. Questions pertaining to measures for vocational education and war risk insurance will be discussed as well.

There is every indication that the contest for the office of national commander this year will be a warm one. While there are no avowed candidates, various state departments are advancing "favorite sons."

Ohio will present the name of Col. F. W. Galbraith, former commander of the department of Ohio. Illinois will offer the name of Milton J. Foreman, also a former colonel and state department commander. Kentucky will nominate Emmet O'Neil, who has been quite active in legion organization work, while Iowa will urge the election of Harford MacNider. MacNider is said to have more decorations than any other American soldier, with the exception of General Pershull. MacNider wears nine decorations for valor. He is a bank president in Mason City and a vice commander of the department of Iowa. Last year he ran second to D'Oiler who was second to Franklin D'Oiler of Philadelphia for national commander.

the office this year as the precedent was more or less established at the Minneapolis convention that no commander would be re-elected. D'Oiler, who has served without salary, intends to take an extensive trip through the Orient following the Cleveland convention.

As far as Cleveland's share in the convention is concerned, the entire city is to be decorated as never before. Contractors are already at work decorating the downtown district and planning the erection of arches, streamers throughout the city will fly the flag, the service flag and the legion pennants.

Honors Opened to Veterans
All hotels have been reserved for the legionnaires and in addition hospitable Clevelanders have offered to entertain in their homes, as their guests, legion boys.

National headquarters already have been moved to Cleveland from Indianapolis. Lemuel Bolles, Seattle national adjutant, having established headquarters for the entire clerical staff here.

One of the features of the convention will be the program for the entertainment of the American soldiers who received the congressional medal of honor—the most difficult to obtain of all war decorations in the world. Forty of the 54 living medalists will attend. They will be honor guests of the convention and all of their expenses being paid.

Admiral Grant of the British Grand fleet will be the personal representative of the British Empire, who commanded the allied navies during the war. Gen. Marie Emile Pavolski will represent Marshal Poch. There will be celebrities from other allied nations and representatives of veterans' associations throughout the world.

Baseball Scandal Before Grand Jury

at the rottenness so far revealed. He added that "Chicago, New York, Cincinnati, and St. Louis gamblers are bleeding baseball and corrupting players."

"Series Was Crooked."
State's Attorney Hoyne, according to a statement received from him in New York, declared he "had no doubt that the 1919 series was crooked and that at least one Chicago player was crooked." He added that a report that Cohen and Tamm had information regarding alleged baseball crookedness would be thoroughly investigated.

Jacob C. "Rube" Benton, New York Giants pitcher, who told the grand jury yesterday of being offered a bribe to lose a game, naming "Buck" Herzog, Hal Chase and "Haine" Zimmerman in connection with the alleged offer in a statement published today, named four White Sox players as having been named to him by an alleged member of a baseball gambling ring in a discussion of alleged "fixing" of the 1919 series.

Names Four Players.
These players, Benton declared, were Eddie Clotte, pitcher of the first game, Claude Williams, pitcher in the second, Chick Gandil, center fielder, and Nap Lajoie, center fielder. According to Benton's statement the players were mentioned by a Cincinnati "betting commissioner" named Hahn. Benton said that five White Sox players demanded $100,000 for "throwing" the series and that this was paid to them by a group of Pittsburgh gamblers. Benton said he was sure Clotte could name the Pittsburgh gamblers and would be glad to give the information to the grand jury.

Benton in his story of the alleged "fixing" of the world series last fall said:
"Last fall after the series a man named Hahn, from Cincinnati, known as a betting commissioner, visited me at my home in Clinton, N. C."
"One morning I asked him about world's series. He said the series was not on the square."
"Price Set Was $100,000."
"He said the deal to fix players to throw the series to Cincinnati had been engineered by a syndicate of gamblers from Pittsburgh for whom he worked in Cincinnati as betting commissioner."

"He said certain players on the White Sox team had visited Pittsburgh and made arrangements to throw the games for a price. He said the players demanded $100,000 to lay down so that the Sox would lose and this was paid them."

"We discussed various players on the team. Buck Weaver was not mentioned, nor were the names of Jackson, Eddie Collins, John Collins or Ray Schalk. Five players were mentioned by Hahn. Four were: Eddie Clotte, pitcher of the first game of the series; Claude Williams, who pitched the second game; Chick Gandil, first baseman; and Nap Lajoie, center fielder. I do not recall the name of the fifth man."

"I do know that the tip was sent out of Cincinnati to bet on the Reds. Jean Dubuc, a member of the Giants, received a wire instructing him to bet his bankroll on the Reds. I was with him when he opened the wire. I read the message. I don't remember who signed it."

Chase Had Roll.
"They tell me around New York that Hal Chase won $40,000 on the series. He must have won a lot because he had plenty of money after the series ended. I understand his and Dubuc's information came from the same man."

"The grand jury called Benton."

Herzog said, "and grants him immunity from prosecution, notwithstanding the fact that he admitted betting on the world's series, as my witnesses have charged, following a tip from Hal Chase."

Herzog said he would sign a waiver of immunity when he demanded to be heard.
